

POLITICAL POT

Boiling and Strong Candidates in the Field.

MANY GOOD MEN AND TRUE

Who Are Willing to Make the Fight on Republican Lines, Who Await Action of the Conventions—Some Observations on the Democratic Outlook.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer. CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 20.—It now looks as though that brilliant young leader, United States District Attorney Joseph Holt Gaines, will run away with the Republican nomination for Congress in this district. Not only has he been a backer, but Fayette as well, has endorsed him above the candidacy of an aspirant in that county, Mr. J. Roach, who has practically withdrawn from the contest.

Mr. Gaines is regarded as the logical candidate. Twice already he has nearly had the nomination, and each time it has gone to his rival by a narrow margin, largely because he himself was willing to give way to the older candidate. The first occasion was when Edgar P. Rucker, at present attorney general, was nominated; the second, when ex-Congressman C. P. Dorr was nominated at Montgomery after he had encountered a brilliant opposition from Mr. Gaines.

This time, though, Mr. Gaines has no intention of giving way to anybody. He thinks he is entitled to the honor and will spare no pains to get it, trusting in the Republicans of the Third district to elect him.

Mr. Gaines has several points of strength which would render him a more formidable candidate than any of his rivals. He is a true-blue life-long Republican, coming from a race of Republicans. His father, the late Major Theophilus Gaines, filled many of the very highest offices of trust and was himself, in 1890, the Republican nominee for the same honor for which his no less brilliant son is now striving. No more graceful thing could be done by his party than to afford him an opportunity to achieve the goal for which his father struggled and failed. On the other hand, Mr. Roach and Judge C. W. Smith, of Mercer, the latter of whom is an active candidate, are both converted Democrats. The Republicans here are always willing to open their arms to converts, but they are not so willing to confer upon them at once the highest honors at their disposal.

In addition to this primary advantage, Mr. Gaines has the additional advantage of "standing in" with both the office-holders, who always excite a little envy among the less favored, and those who are without the lines. For, though a federal office-holder at the time, Mr. Gaines was bold enough during the last senatorial fight to shy his own castor in the struggle. He was beaten, of course, but he had shown his pluck.

The most serious menace to Mr. Gaines' nomination is the announcement, within the past few days, that L. A. Martin, of this city, will also be a candidate. Mr. Martin has served several terms in the legislature and made an excellent record, but it is not thought that he is yet ripe for congressional timber.

Democratic Situation Uncertain.

The Democratic situation is a little less certain. The Democrats of the district regard Congressman Johnston as the strongest candidate, but there is some doubt whether he will be willing to run again. If he does it will be merely because his party is unwilling to trust the fight to any one else, since he is known to have no liking for his present position in Congress.

In the event that Mr. Johnston will not consent to be martyred there is no telling who will be the nominee. State Senator C. W. Osenton, of Montgomery, is said to have the mania pretty bad, and there are others who are at present not saying much. Once in a while Joe Chilton is mentioned in the connection, but he has been "mentioned" so often that such rumors are no longer regarded seriously.

The question as to who had better be their gubernatorial nominee is not engrossing the Democratic leaders so much as the similar question is occupying the attention of the Republican leaders. Within the last few weeks, however, circumstances have brought it more to the forefront. It is a noteworthy fact that both Republicans and Democrats have concluded that their nominee is to be from the Fourth district, and it would not be at all surprising to see them both from Parkersburg.

There are now on the Democratic side, just as there are on the Republican, two candidates who are taken seriously. These are John H. Holt, of Huntington, who was the Democratic nominee for judge of the supreme court last time, and is now a practicing attorney at Huntington, and Judge L. N. Tannover, of Parkersburg, who is judge of the circuit court of Wood county. It is positively known that up until a few weeks ago Judge Tannover had about decided to remain out of the fight, and it is a source of some speculation among both Democrats and Republicans as to what it was that induced him to change his mind. It is believed, also, that he will be backed by the Chilton-MacCorkle wing of the party, which is still alive, even though it sometimes feigns to be dead.

Mr. Holt, on the other hand, is believed to be the favorite candidate of John T. McGraw, the party leader, from the fact that the two have been intimately associated in business, as well as in political affairs. Holt pretends a modest unwillingness, but those who are close to him say there is no doubt that he will be a candidate. The third district has no candidate, unless, as is frequently suggested, Congressman Johnston should take a fancy to the place.

If Holt or Tannover is nominated, it is very likely that the nomination for auditor will come to James H. Miller, of Hinton, who is chairman of the Democratic congressional committee; since W. L. Mansfield, editor of the Gazette, who was the other most discussed candidate, is credited to the Fourth district.

Judge Daniel B. Lucas is perhaps the most aggressive of the candidates for governor just at present, and appears to have much confidence in his chances, but the Democrats in this part of the state don't take him seriously. Andrew Edmiston is a receptive candidate and is but little discussed.

WHIRLING WHOLESALE MARKETS.

Weekly Change of Quotations in all Lines of Local Trade.

Office of the Intelligencer, Wheeling, March 20.

The stiff quotations on raw sugars have brought about the expected advance on refined. Coffee is unchanged, in good demand. There was a slight advance in hams. Molasses and syrups continue to go out fairly well, with prices steady as quoted. Canned goods continue to move freely, but prices have undergone no recent important change. The most active articles are tomatoes and corn. Evaporated articles are moving fairly well. Prunes are selling quite freely. Salt fish reported moderately active, with prices steady as quoted. The recent advance in brooms and wooden ware appears to be well maintained.

In the produce lines the market has been a little quiet this week on account of increased prices on lemons, oranges and cabbage. New cabbage has commenced to come forward; also rhubarb and other green goods. Sauer kraut is booming on account of higher prices on cabbage.
